"Go into my vineyard, and I'll pay you a just wage," wrote St. Matthew in today's gospel.

When I was living in Green Bay, I was the bookkeeper of my dad's restaurant/supper club the Air View Club. Better yet, my official title was Secretary-Treasurer of the business. And as chief financial officer of the company, it was my job to keep good and up-to-date records of the payroll system, which in itself, seemed almost like a full time job within a full time job.

And in the early days of the business, all of the accounting was done with pencil and paper, and this seemed to go very well. Then came computers, and I really didn't know what a roller coaster ride that was going to be, going from pencil and paper accounting to computerized accounting. Let me tell you a true story. After the very first week with computers, I thought I was going to throw them all in the garbage. Everything took about twice as long with computers. It did not save time, and it seemed there was twice about as much paperwork. But the real lesson to be learned was this: All of the waitresses came to me with their paychecks saying that I did not pay them the right wage. Some even said to me that they worked more hours than the other waitresses did, and how come they had the same pay as those who worked less hours? "This isn't fair!" was their cry.

Well... I was verbally scrambling to find a possible explanation for this and blamed it all on the computer by saying, "Well, you see this program... uh... you know... it kind of has a mind of its own. It doesn't really post some deductions to the right accounts..." and things like that. I really did not want to blame it on me and say, "I goofed..." it was my fault."

But in the long run, after working out some human operator errors, after a few feeble and ill-directed attempts, the payroll system ran like clockwork, and it saved me from writer's cramp from writing out all the checks by hand. It just goes to show you the problems with a computerized accounting system. And in the Gospel, St. Matthew tries to show us that God has an accounting system all of his own, and this system, believe it or not, has been running like clock-work also, for centuries. But you may not think so! Not at first glance! Just stop and think about it: Who in their right mind would go out five times and find workers, and then at the end of the accounting period, pay them the same wage, regardless of hours worked? Would you consider that employer to be fair? But for some odd reason, that

THIS & THAT: "WE LIKE THINGS TO BE FAIR!" "The parable of the workers in the vineyard, from Matthew 20:1-16, appears to be an offense to common sense. Those who work a longer day ought to be paid more than those who work just an hour or two. The landowner seems unfair. Shouldn't workers get what they deserve? This Gospel parable shows us a world where everyone receives---not what they deserve, but what they need. Like every parable, this one has a twist at the end that is meant to shock the listener into a new awareness. What the landowner does in paying everyone the same amount is on simple business terms absurd. Jesus is teaching that God's rule is marked by generosity, especially to the last and the least, the overlooked, the undervalued, the unwanted, and those judged as not very capable. But God calls all to do what they (we) can do. Sometimes we might feel jealous of the good fortune of others. We might think that it is unfair that God should save those who only turn to Him at the end of their lives, when others have served God faithfully all their lives. We do like things to be fair, but we also have known God's splendid generosity going beyond anything that we deserved. We are grateful! Let's pray for each other this week as we try to mirror the generosity of God at work, at school, or church, or whenever an opportunity arises. Have a blessed week and stay healthy! -- Sr. Yvonne owner of the vineyard did. You might call him a maverick or just plain stupid, for who operates a business like this? This is just the action that might get a CEO fired by today's standards. And another thing to consider about fairness: Who would go out into the street, as an employer, and hire all the rejects from someone else's companies? (Even though the 12 Apostles are a good example of this!) Perhaps you got the feeling during this Gospel story that God will not be fair to you once you get to the pearly gates. I can hear the arguing going on between you and God, and the dialogue might go something like this:

"But God! I went to Church every Sunday. I gave to all of the charities as best as I could with my time, talents, and treasure. I even prayed so hard every day for the past 30, 40, or maybe even 50 years. WHY does someone who just repented on their deathbed get to be in Heaven, after I have done so much more with my life than so-and-so has?"

Alright. Pretty good case to make against God not being fair. After all, the do-ers should be rewarded, and the non-doers should be punished. And I myself have often wondered too about the situation of so-called "death-bed-repentances," as this does not seem very fair to me. But one good example of the deep mystery of God's love and mercy is to keep in mind what happened to the so-called "good thief" on Good Friday. What WERE those words that Jesus said to him? Think about that some time this week! So they next time you are tempted to think, "That's so unfair that so-and-so repented, with all their faults and what they did; and they got into Heaven," just stop and think, "is it really unfair that God has pardoned your sins, so you can get to Heaven?" — Fr. Tim Welles
